

Copyright

Save for in the case of third party information made available on this website (discussed below), the Yoo-rrook Justice Commission owns the copyright in all material produced for this website.

We encourage the sharing and re-use of information provided on this website, subject to appropriate attribution.

All material provided on this website is provided under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International licence, except:

- any images or branding, including the Yoo-rrook Justice Commission's branding; and
- content supplied by third parties.

Read the full licence.

Attribution

Material obtained from this website must be attributed as:

© Copyright Yoo-rrook Justice Commission

Third-party copyright

In some cases, a third party may hold copyright in material presented or made available on this website, with their prior consent.

Their permission may be required to use the material.

Contact us

You can inquire about copyright and use of the material on this website (including third party material) by emailing us via enquiries@yoorrookjusticecommission.org.au

Reviewed: 8 September 2021