Q3: How could First Peoples' history and culture be better taught at school?

An embedded focus on First Peoples' ways of being & learning with design by First Nations people
 A capacity to teach in language (ideally with language classes dedicated to the local language of the school)
 Liaison between schools & locally owned & run First Nations organisations

Q4: How could Aboriginal kids be better supported at school?

- embed aboriginal ways of being ways & songs into curriculum
- support and encouragement to attend cultural responsibilities & opportunities

Q5: How else could we improve the Victorian education system for First Peoples?

Broader understanding of colonization
& colonial structures both taught & recognized within school,
university and work force

Build pride & prestige in our First Nations culture & knowledge

— this is a gift ~~for~~ ~~with~~ a privilege
for all of our community

PART C: Protecting your information

Indigenous Data Sovereignty asserts the right of Indigenous Peoples to own, control, access and possess data that derive from them.

The Yoorrook Justice Commission applies Indigenous Data Sovereignty protocols to the collection, storage, and use of First People's information. These protocols respect the decisions you make on how your information is used, protected, accessed, and shared now and in the future.

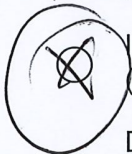

Yoorrook uses submissions to inform our inquiries. We will not use your submission for any other purpose without contacting you for permission.

This section is about your choice on whether you want your submission published or not, and whether to include your name, or not. If a submission is published it is a public document that can be read by anyone and Yoorrook may refer to or quote from published submissions in our reports.

Please choose one of the following options: * (required)

I agree to Yoorrook publishing my submission including my name (or my group's name if it is a group submission)

I agree to Yoorrook publishing my submission anonymously without my name (or my group's name if it is a group submission) → This one please

Do not publish my submission (Yoorrook will still read your submission and it will inform our work, but Yoorrook will not publish it on our website or refer to it or quote from it in our reports. Your submission will be kept confidential.)

Please note that Yoorrook will not publish all or part of a submission if it considers it inappropriate to do so.
